New sponsorship for "in a nutshell"

Since 2018, the Swiss medical profession has been able to access "in a nutshell" - the platform for practice-orientated specialist knowledge - around the clock. Today, 4,400 doctors use the range of tried-and-tested practice guides developed by Pro Medicus in Zurich for more than 20 therapeutic areas, the digital doctor's kit with online scores, the AI-supported Dr Nuts chatbot and numerous teaching materials. The medical content on the non-profit platform is evidence-based and can be made available to registered users free of charge thanks to many years of multi-sponsorship in accordance with the regulations.

The previous operator, Pro Medicus, provides highly specialised consulting and services for players in the healthcare sector and develops platforms on its own or on behalf of others. The company has now decided to hand over the popular platform "in a nutshell" to a new organisation.

Securing long-term continuity with med:compact AG

The new operator will be med:compact AG, a company specialising in the provision of medical content. It is part of Sonic Suisse, the leading network of regional laboratories in Switzerland. The new operator is committed to continuing to operate "in a nutshell" as a neutral, practice-orientated and evidence-based platform. It will maintain its successful orientation and continue to focus on the needs of the medical profession in the further development of content and functions. This will be ensured in particular by the advisory board with Prof. Reto Krapf, a very experienced player in continuing medical education and training.

The professional collaboration with the previous authorship under the patronage of the Swiss Society of General Internal Medicine SGAIM is to be continued seamlessly in order to continue integrating high-quality content and current developments into the knowledge platform
